VOL. XXVIII.

STANFORD, KY., FRIDAY, MARCH 30, 1900, 9 A. M.

NO. 9

Kingsville, Lincoln county.

Boone Flint suffered serious accident a few days ago, by a bale of hay falling on him.

Rev. Sam Jones, of Mercer, filled his appointment at the Christian church Sunday evening.

The citizens of our town and vicinity are disconsolate because the Hustonville Minstrels do not appear here.

W. L. McCarty says he thinks he will not run the canning factory this coming season owing to rise in price of cans and solder.

Our photographer, Robert Murphy, has competition in James Bennett, of Casey county, who has recently set up a gallery on Hester Street.

Mrs. W. L. McCarty and little son, Mike, accompanied her mother-in-law, Mrs. Rebecca McCarty, home to Williamsburg, where they will make an extended visit to relatives. William Smith and family have moved here from South Fork and occupy the house recently vacated by James McCarty. Jas. Baxter of Duncan, has rented Mrs. B. C. Pennybacker's farm. Mr. Hanna, of the firm of Wiborg & Hanna lumber dealers, was here last week to have a saw mill removed to the Disbrow timber tract.

Richard Lewis, of Tennessee, was here last week negotiating for timber. Mack Williams returned from Moreland Tuesday, where he was substituting as station agent for several days. Miss Mary Helen Sweeney has returned from a visit to her sister, Mrs. Mack Vest, at Eubanks. J. F. Hupel, of Lexington, visited his sister-in-law, Mrs. James McCarty, last week. Master Earl Flint has returned from Danville, where he has been attending school. Keston Singleton and wife, of Montgomery, are visiting relatives here.

LIBERTY.

Monday was court day and considering the high waters, a very good crowd attended. Circuit court convenes next Monday.

Mrs. Frances E. Beauchamp, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, will lecture in the Christian church Saturday, April 19.

Quite an improvement has been made in the choir of the Christian church by the addition of a clarinet and cornet played by M. K. Humphrey and J. R. Whipp.

A. P. Young and M. K. Humphrey spent several days in Cincinnati last week, the former to select furniture for the bank, the latter merely on a pleasure trip, or perhaps to prepare for a pleasure trip.

Fields Montgomery, who has been teaching at Neatsburg, has closed his school and is at home for a while. Mrs. Mattie McRoberts, who has been in Louisville for more than a month, has returned with a large and beautiful line of millinery.

J. P. Wilkinson and Lafa Sharp spent last week in Louisville, buying their spring line of goods. Miss Sue Rigney, of Adair, is visiting at Judge Tilford's. Rev. J. B. Ferrill, the Baptist minister, who will preach once each month in the Christian church until their church is erected, has moved to the property of Wilson Coots.

Much excitement was caused in town last Saturday about noon, by the alarm of fire. It proved to be a smoke house belonging to Lafa Sharp, which caught from a fire made to smoke the meat. Very little of the meat was saved, but they were fortunate to escape with even that loss, since it took a desperate effort to save the residence, it being considerably scorched.

Miss Jennie Wilkinson has returned from Louisville, where she has been visiting relatives for several weeks. Preston Fogle, who has been at his home near Middleburg, for two weeks, has returned to his law studying. J. D. Belden spent a day or two in Somerset last week. Messrs. Carpenter and Lynn of Hustonville, who represent the Deering Machine Company, were in town a couple of days this week.

Little Henry Gillock, aged 10, and son of a strong republican, has proved himself "a man of his own head" in the right road, by being a true democrat and one of the first to contribute to the Goebel monument fund. He earned the 50 cents by his own hard labor and gave it cheerfully, as though he were worth thousands. Long may the little democrat live and prosper.

Col. Jack Chinn announces that he will go upon the lecture platform and devote the proceeds of his labor to the Goebel monument fund. His subject will be the political situation in Kentucky, beginning with the campaign for the democratic gubernatorial nomination and covering the details of the regular campaign, the contest, the assassination, the trials of the suspects and all other occurrences relating thereto.

A young lady in Cheyenne says she likes to be kissed. She does not differ much from most other girls, except in her frankness.

LANCASTER.

The friends of Capt. W. H. Collier are glad to learn that he has been complimented by the war department for gallantry in the Philippines.

Mrs. Edward Naylor, an excellent lady, died of consumption at her home near Mt. Hebron, Tuesday, and the remains were buried Wednesday.

The rubbish in the cellar of E. C. Gaines' store was fired by a candle, which was carelessly left burning, and it required quick work to prevent heavy loss by fire.

Mr. Harry Robinson and "Uncle" George Bright have returned from Florida, where they spent the winter. They are looking well and talk interestingly of the trip.

Dr. Acton has moved his office into his new brick residence on Lexington Avenue. Mr. William Price, the popular young attorney of Danville, paid me a pleasant call Wednesday.

The court of claims and levy meets next Tuesday. The State board of equalization has ordered a raise of 10 per cent. on real estate in this county, which proves that we are in a prosperous condition.

Judge Sauley finally adjourned circuit court Tuesday, the business having been disposed of. Sheriff Sanders and Jailor Ross took the six parties who were sentenced, to the penitentiary today, Thursday.

After Gen. John B. Gordon delivers his lecture at the court house May 23, Capt. William Herndon, in behalf of the G. A. R., will receive the Confederate veterans and they will likely have the general to respond for them.

The Lyon Comedy Co. will be at the opera house every night next week, with a new program each night. It comes highly recommended and deserves liberal patronage. The company was here some years ago and gave perfect satisfaction.

The Lancaster Record is 11 years old, having been published by Capt. Louis Landrum for five years, during which time it has advocated everything favorable to peace and prosperity of the city and Garrard county. It has been truthfully said that it is nearer a non-partisan paper than any published in the State.

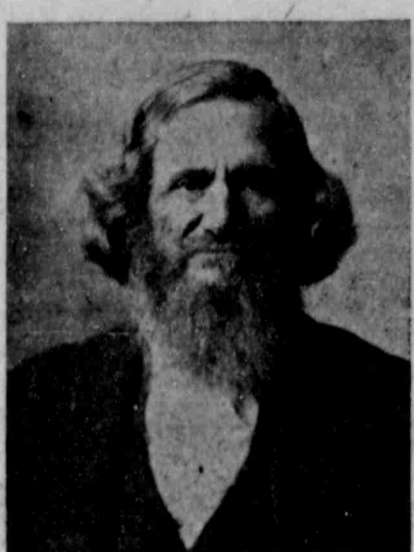

At 1 o'clock today, Thursday, Mr. J. C. Siler, a popular stock dealer and Miss Naisie, the attractive daughter of Mr. James L. McCarty, took the nuptial vows at the bride's home, Rev. J. C. Massee officiating. The party partook of a delicious supper at Mr. G. A. Siler's, father of the groom, at Preachersville, and came to this city, taking rooms at the Seige Hotel.

On Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock Mr. Clifton Anderson, a popular and worthy citizen, died at his home in this city, in his 61st year, having been an invalid for a number of years. He leaves a widow, who was Miss Susan Burnside, and three sons. He was related to one of the most influential families in the county. The remains were buried Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Lancaster cemetery.

Squire W. H. Kinnaird is on the sick list. Mr. J. H. Miller spent a few days with friends in this city. Mr. A. E. Crone has returned from Cincinnati. Dr. Acton has gone to Louisville. Hon. R. H. Tomlinson went to Frankfort on business. Mrs. G. M. Patterson went to Lexington Tuesday to attend a meeting of the State Executive Committee of the W. C. T. U., of which she is a member, and in which cause she has done much good work. Mr. James Dillon succeeded in having a handsome monument erected over the remains of Capt. J. T. McQuery, of the 3rd Kentucky Cavalry, Morgan's command.

Capt. Charles Gallagher, one of Lancaster's oldest and most prominent citizens, died at the home of his son-in-law, Mr. W. A. Blatt, at Winchester, after an illness of several years. The remains were buried in Lancaster cemetery today, Thursday, at 10 o'clock A. M. He was about 73 years of age, a member of the Presbyterian church and one of the three remaining Mexican veterans of this county. Capt. F. J. White and Mason Logan surviving him. He was a positive character and had fixed convictions on all public questions. In order to manifest proper appreciation of the gallantry of the deceased, four friends representing three wars, attended the remains to the cemetery. The Mexican war was represented by Capt. F. J. White, the Blue by James Dillon, the Gray by Capt. Mike Salter and the Spanish war by Capt. Sam Duncan. The exercises at the Simpson Hotel were deeply impressive, appropriate remarks being made by Rev. Lapsley, McKee and the quartette consisting of Lieut. J. M. Farra, Letcher Owsley, R. G. Ward and O. W. Shugars, furnishing appropriate music.

Since Dec. 1 Controller Dawes has received 400 applications for authority to organize National banks under the new financial laws, most of them being for banks of $25,000, the minimum capital.

JAMES F. MOORE.

The subject of this sketch was born, Nov. 30, 1832, and was consequently in his 68th year at the time of his demise. He was a son of David Moore, Sr., and Elizabeth Moore, and was married in 1874 to Mrs. Mary Bobbitt, a lady of rare culture and much beloved by all who were so fortunate as to make her acquaintance. Two children blessed this union, James D. and Mack H.—James D. being the sole survivor of this once happy family. He was born in the neighborhood of where he died, and his entire life was spent in this county. He commenced the battle of life none too well blessed financially, but with a steady perseverance and ready business tact he accumulated quite an estate.

The writer, whose acquaintance extends back quite a number of years, knew him to be a man of strong force of character, steadfast in his convictions, quick of speech and quick to resent any injury, or insult, but at the same time as tender hearted as a woman, loyal to his friends, no matter what their station in life. He added at all times to the sum of human joy and were every one to whom he did some loving service to bring a single blossom to that silent mound of earth in McCormack's church yard, he would sleep beneath a wilderness of flowers today. Such a character, strong, ardent and aggressive, with a love of fair play predominating, made his life worthy of emulation in many things. I never heard of him being in any trouble where he was the aggressor, and while a great deal was thrust upon him in his later life, it was invariably none of his seeking. His last illness, which was pronounced intestinal obstruction, kept him confined to his bed but a few days, but during that time his sufferings were intense, but through it all his wonderful force of will came into play and proved to all he was an uncommon man to keep as cheerful as he did.

When he became aware of the ultimate end, and the intense pain he suffered meant death as the only relief, he resignedly waited the end, and said, "I am not afraid of death." All that the loving hands of a devoted son, a loving niece and faithful friends could do to make him forget his pain was done, and each effort was met with a loving smile and a kindly word. When it was deemed advisable to perform a surgical operation for his relief a special train was arranged for by his son, for the benefit of the celebrated Dr. Barrow, and all that human hands could do was done to ward off the grim monster. Before the train could arrange to get out of Lexington physicians at his bedside pronounced it too late, and the doctor was telegraphed "Too late."

His great love for his children was manifest in his dying hours, and his last words were about "Jim" and "Mack"—his two boys. Mack was not there to comfort his parent in his dying hours, as he had preceded his father a few years since, but in his temporary moments of delirium he imagined he was again united to that boy who had preceded him to that Great Beyond, and with his last breath, he spoke tenderly to both, as though both were present in flesh. As the clock neared the hour of noon, Wednesday, Feb. 21st, this loving brother, husband, father, friend, spirit passed to that Eternal bar of God, as easily as twilight faded to night and became silence and pathetic dust. " * * * " For whether in mid-sea or among the breakers of a farther shore a wreck at last must mark the end of each and all. And every life, no matter if its every hour is rich with love, and every moment jeweled with a joy, will, at his close, become a tragedy as sad and deep and dark as can be woven of the warp and woof of mystery and death.

Life is a narrow vale between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud and the only answer is the echo of our wailing cry. From the voiceless lips of unreplying dead there comes no word; but in the night of death hope sees a star, and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing.

Leaving all issues to the God who rules over us all, to Whom we must refer the mysteries of life and the mysteries likewise of death, we commend the spirit of our friend, James F. Moore, with the belief that he will not be harshly dealt with.

Speech can not contain our love; there was, there is, no gentler, truer, madder man.
